About Us

IIMPACT was started by the Alumni of IIM-Ahmedabad of 1978 batch. Today we are spread across 11 states running over 2000 learning centres. Under its Girl Child Education Program, IIMPACT identifies out-of-school/ irregular/ dropout girls in rural villages of India and provides them with quality primary education. IIMPACT started with just 450 girls and 15 Learning Centres in 2003. Today IIMPACT supports nearly 60,000 girls (2019). The IIMPACT Learning Centre model establishes single-teacher led single-classrooms as centres imparting Primary-level education using a Multi Grade Multi Level approach.

Case Studies

One of the 4 girls in her family. Murshidabad, West Bengal

Barsha Hazra, an 8-year-old girl, lives with her family in village Chourigachha in Murshidabad district of West Bengal. There are seven members in her family; her parents, herself and four other siblings. Before the birth of Barsha, her father already had two daughters. With great expectation for a son, he had decided to give birth to one more child.

But again, he was gifted with twin girls. It was an unexpected result for the father but now he had many daughters to feed with himself as the only earning member of the family. He works as a daily labour, so it proved difficult for him to maintain such a big family. As a result, all the girl children in the family received meagre necessities and became neglected. In such a situation having an IIMPACT learning centre in the village was a boon for the girls. During a home visit by the teacher at the learning centre, the stressful economic condition of this family came to the limelight. It became apparent that the family even found it difficult to manage three meals for all family members. The girl children of this family did go to school, but only with the priority of getting the mid-day meals. When Barsha started visiting the centre in May 2019, her academic acumen was comparatively very poor according to the rest of her class. After she joined the center, an environment concentrating on education was developed around her which motivated her to learn many new things and progress to Level 6 of Grade 3 at. Now Barsha's parents want to enrol their other girls to learning center as well.

Triple Benefits for the teacher South 24 Parganas, West Bengal

Aparna Mondal is a 35 years old woman who teaches at an IIMPACT Learning Centre in Nainan village of South 24 Parganas district in West Bengal. She got married at the age of 16 years and was a victim of child marriage. Soon she became a mother and gave birth to a boy.

The financial condition of her family was not good as her husband earned very little money and could not manage the expenses of the family. It proved to be very difficult for her to provide for her child's education and family expenditure. In this situation she heard of the teacher vacancy at the IIMPACT Learning Centre in her own village. She opted for the post and appeared for the interview. Soon she was selected and joined instantaneously. This job brought a turning point in her life. Even though she had only studied till 10th Grade and honed a matriculation degree, she was able to learn new ways of teaching through trainings held for all IIMPACT teachers. From this source of income, she could support her husband financially and at the same time help her son to continue his studies. Now that she can tutor her child and is growing as an independent individual, she feels very proud of the programme and her participation in it.

At least for his girls if not for him! Pakur, Jharkhand

Jeker Ali is a 40 years old man and the father of a student at IIMPACT's Learning Centre in village Hariganj in Paruk district of Jharkhand. He is a wholesale businessman of crops and vegetables. His elder daughter completed 5th Grade (Level 20) at the centre and was mainstreamed in the Government Primary School Hariganj in 2018. He is very happy about his daughter's academic and behavioural achievements, and eager to admit his second daughter at the center as well. For last five years he has been associated with the centre and regularly visits the to monitor progress and provide his input during the Centre Management Committee (CMC) meeting. He is literate, although only until 4th Grade. He realizes the importance of education especially because of the dealings he must conduct as part of his business. He says he is unable to handle and manage his daily affairs due to limited education and so he promotes education of all children in the community. He even motivates parents and community stakeholders to ensure regular attendance of the children in the school and the centre.
